More Than a Full Room

A community centre offered a free Saturday skills workshop. All places were booked quickly, but several people failed to attend. The organiser first considered charging a fee for future bookings. Before deciding, she contacted those who had missed the session. Some had unexpected caring responsibilities, while others had forgotten to cancel when their plans changed. The centre introduced a reminder message and a simple cancellation option. It also kept a waiting list. At the next workshop, empty places were offered to other people in time. The organiser was pleased that attendance improved without making the activity less affordable. She planned to review the system again after several sessions rather than judge it from one result.

16. What problem did the centre experience?
    A) Nobody wanted to book a place.
    B) The workshop had no suitable teacher.
    C) Booked places were left unused.
17. What did the organiser do before choosing a solution?
    A) Immediately introduced a large fee
    B) Asked absent participants about their reasons
    C) Cancelled all future workshops
18. What changes were introduced?
    A) Longer sessions and compulsory tests
    B) Fewer places and higher prices
    C) Reminders, easy cancellation and a waiting list
19. What was a benefit of the new approach?
    A) Attendance improved while access remained free.
    B) The centre no longer needed to organise bookings.
    C) Every participant attended without exception.
20. Why will the organiser review the system again?
    A) Several sessions provide a better basis for judgement.
    B) One successful result proves nothing can improve.
    C) She has already decided to end the workshop.
