A DIFFERENT KIND OF SOUVENIR

During a school visit to a nearby town, our class had to bring back something that told a story about the place. Most students expected to buy postcards. My friend Leyla and I asked a shopkeeper about an old photograph in her window. She explained that it showed the street before cars were allowed there. With her permission, we recorded a short interview and took a photograph of the original picture. Back at school, we compared it with an image of the street today. We had not bought an object, but we had collected a story. Our presentation helped classmates notice changes they had walked past without thinking about them.

16. What was the class asked to bring back?
    A) Something that told a story about the town
    B) The most expensive gift they could find
    C) A map of every street in the region

17. What interested the writer and Leyla?
    A) A new postcard collection
    B) An old photograph in a shop window
    C) A competition outside the school

18. What did they do before recording the shopkeeper?
    A) Bought the photograph B) Interviewed every customer C) Asked for permission

19. How did they use the photograph at school?
    A) Compared it with a recent image
    B) Sold copies to their classmates
    C) Replaced every slide with a postcard

20. What does the text suggest?
    A) A story can be a meaningful result of a visit.
    B) A trip is useful only when something is bought.
    C) Old photographs cannot show change.
