A RECIPE THAT TRAVELLED

For a class food project, Sami brought a recipe that his family had used for years. He expected it to be exactly the same as a version he found online. However, the ingredients and cooking times differed. He asked his grandmother about the changes. She explained that relatives had adapted the recipe when certain ingredients were difficult to find after they moved. The family still used the old name, but their version reflected new places and preferences. Sami included both recipes in his project and explained the differences. He concluded that food traditions could remain meaningful while changing through people's experiences.

16. What surprised Sami?
    A) The online recipe differed from his family's version.
    B) His family had never cooked the dish.
    C) The recipe contained no ingredients.

17. Why had relatives changed the recipe?
    A) They wanted to remove every connection with the past.
    B) Some ingredients were difficult to find after moving.
    C) Their school required a new dish each week.

18. What had the family kept?
    A) Exactly the same cooking time
    B) The old name of the dish
    C) Every original ingredient without change

19. How did Sami present the project?
    A) He showed both versions and explained the differences.
    B) He claimed that one version could not be a real recipe.
    C) He removed his family's experience entirely.

20. Which statement matches the conclusion?
    A) A changed recipe has no cultural value.
    B) Online recipes are always more authentic.
    C) Traditions can change and still matter to people.
