Choosing a Shared Sound

A student committee planned music for a school celebration. Its first idea was to play only the chairperson's favourite songs. Before making a final list, however, members invited suggestions from every class. The responses included unfamiliar styles and several instrumental pieces. Some students wanted quiet background music, while others preferred songs they could dance to. The committee divided the event into different sessions and explained the choices in advance. Afterwards, students said they had not enjoyed every track, but many appreciated hearing music they would not normally have selected themselves.

16. Why did the committee invite suggestions?
    A) To avoid making any final decisions
    B) To let the chairperson choose everything
    C) To include a wider range of preferences

17. What difference appeared in the responses?
    A) Students wanted music for different purposes.
    B) All students requested identical songs.
    C) Nobody suggested instrumental music.

18. How did the committee respond?
    A) It cancelled the celebration. B) It created different sessions. C) It played one song repeatedly.

19. What does the final sentence suggest?
    A) A successful event must please everyone every moment.
    B) Students only appreciated their own suggestions.
    C) An unfamiliar style can be worth hearing.

20. Which title best captures the text's main idea?
    A) Preparing for a Solo Audition
    B) Making Room for Different Musical Tastes
    C) Replacing Live Music with Silence
