A DIFFERENT WAY TO REVISE

Last term, I revised alone and often forgot important details. This term, I have been meeting two classmates after school. We draw diagrams, explain ideas to each other and take turns asking questions. At first, I was uncomfortable speaking in front of them. Now it feels natural. Yesterday, while I was explaining a diagram, I noticed a mistake in my notes. My friends helped me correct it. We do not always agree, but discussing our answers helps us understand the topic. We still do our final homework independently.

16. What is the text mainly about?
    A) Why homework should be cancelled
    B) How to win a drawing contest
    C) How a student's revision habits changed

17. What felt uncomfortable at first?
    A) Speaking in front of classmates
    B) Walking home alone
    C) Reading a textbook

18. When did the writer notice a mistake?
    A) Before joining the group B) During a final examination C) While explaining a diagram

19. What does the writer suggest about disagreement?
    A) It always ends a friendship.
    B) It means nobody has studied.
    C) It can help learning when discussed.

20. Which statement is true?
    A) The students copy every answer.
    B) The students complete final homework individually.
    C) The writer still studies only alone.
