A QUIETER WAY TO CONTRIBUTE

In our class, discussions used to be dominated by a few confident speakers. A new system is being tried this month. Before anyone speaks, every student writes one idea on a card. The cards are collected and grouped by topic. Then we discuss them without naming the writers. Students can still explain their ideas aloud if they wish. Our teacher has the cards photographed for our class record. Some quieter students say their ideas are now noticed more often. At the end of the month, we will decide whether to keep or change the system.

16. Why was the new system introduced?
    A) The class had no writing materials.
    B) Some students had fewer chances to contribute.
    C) The teacher wanted shorter lessons.

17. What happens before the discussion?
    A) Students choose the best speaker.
    B) Everyone writes an idea on a card.
    C) The teacher announces the writers' names.

18. How are the ideas first discussed?
    A) Without naming their writers B) Only by the teacher C) In order of students' marks

19. Why are the cards photographed?
    A) To advertise a camera B) To keep a class record C) To identify the fastest writer

20. What can be inferred about the system?
    A) It is being evaluated before a final decision.
    B) It has already been made permanent.
    C) Students are forbidden to speak.
