A Club for Beginners

A school noticed that its technology club attracted mostly experienced students. Newcomers thought they needed advanced skills before joining. The club's invitation was rewritten to explain that beginners were welcome and equipment was provided. Short introductory sessions were also arranged. Experienced members were asked to support newcomers rather than finish tasks for them. After a month, more students were participating, and several beginners had completed their first small projects. The school kept both introductory and advanced sessions so that members could continue learning at different stages.

16. What discouraged newcomers originally?
    A) The club charged for every question.
    B) They thought advanced skills were required.
    C) All equipment had been removed.

17. What did the new invitation clarify?
    A) Beginners were welcome.
    B) Only final-year students could join.
    C) No equipment could be used.

18. What were experienced members asked to do?
    A) Complete every project for newcomers
    B) Support newcomers' learning
    C) Decide who could attend other lessons

19. What change was observed after a month?
    A) The end of all advanced sessions
    B) A ban on small projects
    C) More participation and completed beginner projects

20. Why were different sessions kept?
    A) To support learners at different stages
    B) To separate students by their exam numbers
    C) To prevent beginners from progressing
